INSTITUTE FOR SECURITY STUDIES
OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

New Research Fellow Post

The Institute for Security Studies is recruiting a research fellow (Grade A2/A3/A4) as from 1 February 2005.

Following EU enlargement, and subject to approval by the Institute's Board of its draft budget for 2005, the EU Institute for Security Studies is creating a new research fellow post as from 1 February 2005.

The ideal candidate would be aged between 30 and 45, with experience in and having already published on CFSP-ESDP related subjects and strategic matters.

Priority will be given to those candidates with a field of expertise not already covered by current members of the research team and who have a good knowledge of security policies of the new member states.

The successful candidate will not be considered to be a representative of his/her country but rather a member of a multinational team working in the spirit of the European Union.

1. General qualifications

Higher degree (master's or doctorate), preferably in the field of political, economic or social sciences;
Sound professional experience, particularly as a researcher in a university or in a public or private centre for analysis doing work similar to that of the Institute;
Excellent knowledge of the workings and policies of the European Union;
Excellent knowledge of the CFSP working languages;
Highly-developed sense of initiative and responsibility and an ability to work well in a relatively small multinational team.

2. Specific qualifications

In addition to a general knowledge of international affairs and security issues, candidates will also be recruited on the basis of specialisation in one of the following fields:-

Enlargement and security;
European institutions;
Military capabilities;
UN and multilateral organizations;
Terrorism and international security;
Proliferation of weapons of mass destruction;
Africa and Asia;
Economics and security.

3. Main tasks

The person selected will, under the Director's guidance, participate in the Institute's study and research projects and other activities such as publications, organise seminars and take part in conferences. The Institute has as its objective to "contribute to the development of CFSP, including ESDP".

He/She will be required to:

prepare policy-oriented notes and analyses for the Council of the European Union and the High Representative;

undertake study and research projects on security questions of interest to the EU, with a view to publication by the Institute or in specialised academic periodicals;

contribute to the conception and editing of the Institute's publications;
collaborate in the organisation of the Institute's seminars, task forces and meetings;

assist in running the Institute's various collective activities.

4. Contract

The contract will be for a fixed term (three years) with the possibility of one extension (maximum two years). All members of staff of the Institute are EU citizens and are bound by the Staff Rules (www.iss-eu.org, About us, Statutes, Staff Rules).

Candidates should submit their applications, together with a detailed curriculum vitae and the names of two referees, by 1 December 2004, by e-mail and normal post. The two referees should send their recommendations, by separate mail, to:

Nicole GNESOTTO
Director
Institute for Security Studies of the European Union
